Chuck, Why doesn't folk use common sense anymore..... As my old grand-pappy-Dave once told me, if it wasn't in the water to begin with - Report it and get it out (within reason).... If it makes you choke, puke, or nauseates more than the folk at a family reunion (Regardless of CAS or non CAS listing), then report it and take action instead of waiting for all tee-total hell to break loose. We occasionally get aggravated at late night "tablespoon of oil" reports from the rail-lines, but that eliminates the guesswork I and being called to the carpet I reckon.... :-)

Saw this last night on reddit. Chem isn't on hazardous substance list (I searched by CAS# but I might have missed it). What is their duty to report to NRC (which they didn't) if its only a "pollutant or contaminant" sans RQ?
